Madison Announces 2015 Teacher of the Year Contest Winners

Madison Communications is excited to announce the winners in their 2015 Teacher of the Year Contest. This year, 27 area teachers were nominated and received over 4,500 online votes over the course of six weeks. The two winners were Jon Yoch, a math teacher at Mt. Olive High School and Jacob Bilbruck, a 5th grade teacher at Benld-Gillespie Elementary School.

2015 marks the tenth year of Madison's annual contest, which has put over $10,000 back into our local school districts. This annual contest is just a small part of Madison's commitment to give back and show support to the communities that they serve. Local area teachers from school districts within Madison's southern Macoupin and eastern Madison counties were eligible to be nominated for this award. Online voting was permitted through April and the two teachers receiving the highest number of votes each awarded $500 to be used toward a future student advancement project. Each teacher also received a plaque and will be recognized in a press release and television commercial specially developed to promote this annual competition.

During the week of May 11th, Mr. Yoch and Mr. Bilbruck were able to celebrate with their students during pizza parties provided by Madison.

Madison is pleased to honor the talents, commitment, and dedication of our local area school teachers, and wishes to take this opportunity to thank everyone who participated in any way in this year's contest.
